Discover JAMCO - Your Trusted Partner

Have you heard of JAMCO (the Japan Media Communication Center)?

We are an organization that provides Japanese TV programs to TV stations in developing countries free of charge.

JAMCO was established in Tokyo in 1991 as a non-profit organization with the mission of fostering international exchange, cultivating mutual understanding with other countries, and contributing to the development of broadcasting in developing countries.

We operate with funding from NHK, Japan's public broadcaster, and commercial broadcasters in Japan. As an affiliate member of the Asia-Pacific Broadcasting Union, JAMCO is widely known among broadcasting stations overseas.

Empowering TV Stations in Developing Countries

Our services include:

1. Free TV Programs

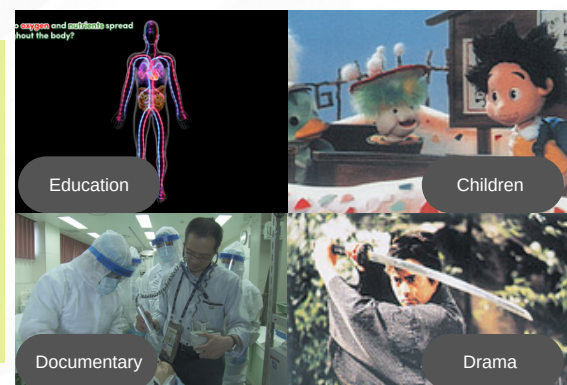

JAMCO selects high-quality TV programs produced by NHK and Japanese commercial broadcasters and translates them into English, Spanish, French, Arabic and Chinese. These programs are made available to broadcasting stations in developing countries free of charge. Since our establishment in 1991, we have produced over 1,800 programs and supplied these to 101 countries 15,000 times altogether.

2. TV Program Library

JAMCO has an extensive program library boasting around 1,371 titles that are available to television stations in developing countries for broadcasting.

You can easily browse and select programs for your TV station on our official website:
